DEMOCRATS HOLD A ROUSING RALLY

Big Crowd Gather To Hear Mayor White Of Dover---W. E. Marvin Presides

The largest attended Democratic rally held in this city for years was held at Freeman's Hall on Thursday evening, and the crowd almost filled the hall, the galleries and the floor, seats being taken while there was a great many standing. The chief attraction seemed to be Mayor Michael J. White of Dover, the Democratic candidate for Congress from this district, and it is seldom that a speaker is afforded such an ovation as this popular mayor of the up river city received. He proved to be an able and fluent speaker, and made a good impression on the crowd.

At the hall former Mayor William E. Marvin presided and first introduced Mr. William J. Starr of Manchester.

He devoted himself entirely to stale issues and had the usual line of talk about the Boston and Maine rule, and the evil effect of the result of the election of Henry B. Quinby, and the great benefits that would be derived from the election of Mr. Carr.

He said that there was disunity in the republican party as shown by the fact that Mr. Pillsbury and Churchill reform leaders of the party had been on the stump before the state convention showing up the very evils that the republicans wanted to foster again on the state. He doubted the sincerity of Mr. Quinby's promises, claiming that his record never showed him to be a reformer. He promised to stand on the platform but it was a matter of fact said he, that the fact that the candidate for the republicans would stand on the platform was so stated before he was selected, for this was part of the platform. He claimed that the entire republican platform was stolen from the Democratic platform, or six years ago. The free pass, the government by commission and the equalization of taxation were all especially hobbies of Mr. Starr, who presented a rosy aspect for the state if they would only elect Mr. Clarence Carr as governor of New Hampshire.

Chairman Marvin in introducing the next speaker Mr. White said that, he was the second democrat mayor in fifty years in Dover and so good was his administration that he had been elected for the second term. He said that now the people of this district wanted him for congressman. He told of Mr. Sillaway's claims of what he done for the yard, how that every building that went up he claimed to have been the cause of and said that it was significant that the only battleship could be brought to the navy yard was on the eve of an election. The only things that he had ever heard that made Mr. Sillaway known in congress was from the fact

SURVIVED BY WIFE HE MARRIED IN PORTSMOUTH

John W. Hutchinson, the Famous War Singer, Dead At Lynn, Mass.

John W. Hutchinson, the illustrious bard of High Rock, Lynn, died of gas poisoning at his home on Thursday.

Hutchinson was married under romantic circumstances in this city by Hon. William E. Marvin, then mayor of the city, during the peace conference. His wife was Mrs. Agnes Everest, a Washington widow and a native of Birmingham, Ala. Their sudden wedding followed their meeting at Portsmouth where both came to sing songs of peace in honor of the conference of the Japanese and Russian peace envoys.

The marriage of Bard Hutchinson caused further strife among his heirs and came shortly after the announcement had been made of a breach of promise suit brought against him by Miss Ellen F. Witherspoon who asked $25,000 for her injured affection. She declared that the bard had offered his hand in marriage to her.

Previous to the marriage also had come the announcement by Barn Hutchinson of his engagement to Grace L. Vincent, an accomplished musician, the daughter of Mrs. Emily P. Vincent of 148 Bond street, Lynn. This announcement was later repudiated by Miss Vincent.

Following the bard's sudden marriage in Portsmouth to his present widow, Mrs. Viola Campbell, his only living child, declared she would take steps to have the marriage set aside. From the day of the marriage Mrs. Campbell, the daughter and Mrs. Hutchinson have not been friendly and the daughter has seldom visited the home of her estranged father because of the strained relations.

Bard Hutchinson owns the entire ground on what is commonly known as High-Rock. He is assessed in Lynn for $60,000 worth of property. In addition to his local holdings he owns property in Hutchinson, Minn., a town named after him. All together Mr. Hutchinson is believed to have left property well over the $100,000 mark.

Since last November, Fred H. Nichols of Lynn has been conservator of the estate, having been appointed through mutual consent of the heirs of the dead man.

Mr. Hutchinson was born in Milford, N. H., on Jan. 4, 1821, and was one of a family of sixteen children, of whom twelve were boys. All the children had good voices and early in life they began their career as singers. In the years before the Civil War they toured the country singing temperance and abolition songs. The greatest prominence of the Hutchinson family was gained during the war, when by special permit from the war department they visited many of the Union camps and sang to the soldiers. Their permit was revoked at one time by General McClellan but was later renewed by Secretary Seward.

After the war the brothers and sisters visited England. Soon after their return to America, John W. Hutchinson purchased his estate, High Rock. In Lynn, and during the remainder of his life was frequently called "The bard of High Rock." Subsequently he sold some portions of his estate and gave a part of it to the city of Lynn to the city of Lynn for a public park.

He was the last survivor of that famous family of singers.

DE PROFIO'S CASE THROWN OUT BY JUDGE PIKE

Rosa Di Berto was Recalled and Given a Severe Cross Examination

The morning session of superior court was taken up today in hearing the several witnesses for the defendant in the case of state against Raphael Di Profio, for attempted murder of Rosa Di Berto.

During the forenoon Rosa Di Berto, the chief witness for the state, was again called to the witness stand where she admitted she did not tell the truth, while testifying on Thursday afternoon. While on the stand today she was subjected to the most searching cross-examination by Attorney John W. Kelley that has ever been heard at a session of superior court in many years in this city.

Case Thrown Out

The case of Raphael Di Profio, charged with attempted murder of Rosa Di Berto, came to a sudden end when the afternoon session of superior court opened. County Solicitor Hatchelder addressed the court and said he would not ask for a verdict in the case. After a few minutes' consultation with the court Judge Pike dismissed the case and Di Profio was released.

This action is no doubt due to the queer combination of testimony offered at the hearing since it went on trial on Thursday.

The Case Began Yesterday

This is the first criminal trial of the term and began on Thursday. Raphael Di Profio was placed on trial on an indictment charging him with assault with intent to murder Rose Di Berto at No. 84 Market street on the afternoon of July 12.

Conity Solicitor Hatchelder appeared for the state and Lawyers Kelley and Harding for the defendant being appointed by the court.

Rosa Di Berto, through an interpreter, Joseph Sacco, said she was 31 years of age and was the wife of Otterlind Di Berto and lived at No. 84 Market street, having lived there one year and two months. Her husband ran a grocery store. Raphael Di Profio was a cousin, and he had been in this country before she was, she had been here seven years.

Di Profio lived at No. 2 Cutts street, but purchased his supplies at her store. He came to the store about every day.

He was shot on Sunday at about 3:30 at that time there was nobody in the house. Raphael had been there

"I just came in to see the new Suit styles"—"What are the Coat fashions like this Fall"—and similar remarks from style curious women can be heard daily in our Suit Department. Women recognize this store as the fashion center of this locality.

Now if you are curious about the new Suit, Coat, Skirt and Waist styles come and behold. Our assortments are practically complete and embody all the best styles and fabric ideas of New York and Parisian designers. The style trend is ever faithfully portayed in our exhibits.

The "Directoire" period has a strong influence over the season's Suit styles. The long, graceful clinging lines of the Coats, the ample lapels, the tight sleeves and the suggestion of a panel in many of the Skirts all evidence it. But an attempt at a description is fruitless. You must come and let your eyes tell the story.

A GREAT PLAY TONIGHT.

"The Man of the Hour," Brady and Grismer's Great Production

"The Man of the Hour" is a timely play, full of dramatic incidents, with plenty of comedy and telling a story of human interest. It deals with one of the most burning topics of the day. The "grafting" of the political "machine" in many of the great cities of this country is the central theme of the story, the particular delineation being the passage through the city council of the town where the action of the play takes place of a bill giving a perpetual franchise to a street railway.

The mayor's signature is all that is necessary to make the bill a fact, and the "machine" has elected to the office, after a hard fight, a rich young man who they thought could be easily "handled." He proves honest, however, and although all kinds of pressure are brought to bear, steadily refuses to make the proposed measure a law.

The love interest in "The Man of the Hour" is that of the young man for the niece of the financier who is responsible for the bill. She has told her lover that in order to win her hand he must prove worthy, but it is at the risk of jeopardizing her fortune and losing her as well that the young man keeps up the fight of his life against the "bosses."

Mr. Broadhurst has utilized in the making of his play many incidents which in the past few months have come to public knowledge through the newspapers of the country, and which, when put upon the stage, have great dramatic value.

The most peculiar condition revealed by the presentation of "The Man of the Hour" from Atlantic to the Pacific coast, in cities and towns of all sizes, is that each community wherein the play is given accepts it in the belief that it is a special picture of local conditions. This was the case in Philadelphia, where the play had its first performance. The newspapers there expressed flat certainty that the play had been written around conditions in Philadelphia, with the result that it ran there for forty-one weeks and will soon be put there again for another long run.

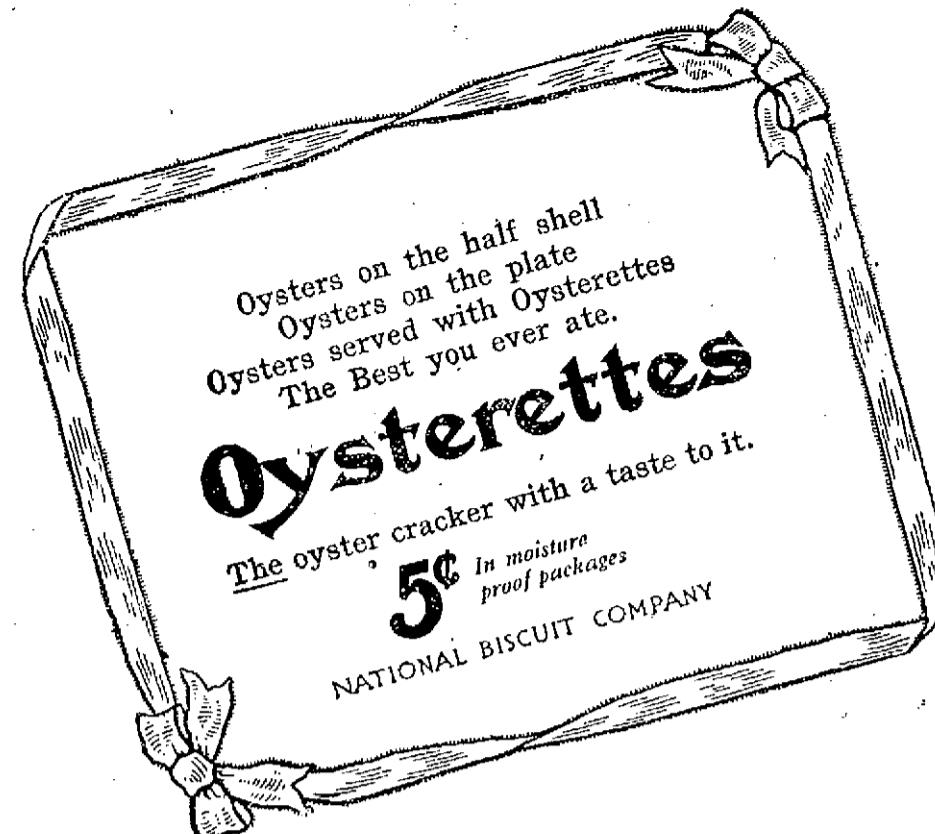

Both New York city, where the play ran two entire seasons, and Boston, where it ran thirty-one weeks, expressed the same belief, that the play dealt with characters who had their prototypes in the public men of each city; while Chicago in turn, thought the play so good a picture of Chicago city life that it kept it on the boards there through the entire heat of the Summer of 1907, for a run of sixteen weeks, which was followed in a few months, by another run of eleven weeks.

"The Man of the Hour" will be acted at Portsmouth Music Hall for two evenings and one matinee performances, beginning this evening by a company, the cast of which includes some of the best actors and actresses on the American stage, among them being Charles D. Mackay, William Wolcott, Edw. Le Saint, Rapley Holmes, Harold Russell, John Butler, Samuel Hunt, Albert Parker, Thomas F. Tracy, Harry J. Davies, Mart J. Cody, Harry Mills, Henry D. Bender, Miss Lillian Kemble, Miss Felt Kern, Miss Kate Lester and others. These are the same people who appeared for six months at the Tremont-Theatre, Boston.

A George M. Cohan Play Coming
George M. Cohan was thirty years of age the 4th of last July, and he is already the author and composer of more than ten highly successful musical plays as follows: "Running for office," "The Governor's Son," "The honeymooners," "Little Jonny Jones," "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," "The Talk of New York," "The Yankee Prince," "An American Idea" and "50 Miles From Boston."

The last named play "Fifty Miles from Boston" is announced for presentation at the Portsmouth Music Hall where it will be given with elaborate costumes and electric environments and will be interpreted by a cast of superlative excellence assisted by a singing and dancing chorus.

"Fifty Miles from Boston" is a particularly satisfactory evening's entertainment, in view of the fact that the plot of the play tells a coherent story through which two true affairs are successfully engineered and throughout the entire piece there is introduced a number of choruses and songs numbers all from the pen of Mr. George M. Cohan, who is beyond question the most popular author, actor, composer and playwright America has ever known. A remarkable young man is George M. Cohan. When they devise a musical play in England it usually requires the services of four authors, one for the lyrics, and one for the book, but a Cohan play never has but

A GOOD PLAY WELL PRESENTED

"Gingerbread Man" Scores A Hit at Music Hall on Thursday Evening

"The Gingerbread Man" scored another hit at Music Hall on Thursday evening, and this time the audience was pleased and greatly amused a good sized audience. It was presented by a good company, a pretty and well trained chorus and staged beautifully, some of the features especially in the "Mooch" song being especially well done.

Easily the star of the cast was John McCowan, as Wondertons Wise and King Bunn, with an inspiration and many of them were original and clever. He was a laugh from the very first appearance on the stage, and his opening song in the second act "Old Ratnecks" was particularly good, and he was obliged to respond to many encores. Fred J. Nice as "The Gingerbread Man" was clever and with Rose Murray had some clever work. Maurice Holden as "A Good Fairy" was picture and a comedian of merit. The same might be said of all of the principals they were all good and especially well adapted for their parts, while their songs were pleasing and well rendered.

Adele Archer's song, "Moon, Moon, Moon," with the scenic effects was exceptionally good, and it was worthy of the many encores.

LIFE IN THE COUNTRY

Half a Million People Asked How They Would Better It

The commission on country life which is gathering information for the President's use in recommending legislation to Congress to help rural communities, has started a campaign to get into individual touch with half a million persons.

The commission has prepared a list of twelve questions on the general economic, social and sanitary conditions of rural life and is inviting them to farmers, educators, clergymen, officers of organizations which deal with any phase of rural activities, businessmen, railroad men, and others who ought to have first-hand opinions on the present conditions of country life and of the needs of rural communities.

Each recipient is asked to give his reasons for his answers and to make any suggestions that seem pertinent. To sum up, the commission inquires: "What, in your judgment, is the most important single thing to be done for the general betterment of country life?"

From the letters that have already come in and there are hundreds although up to this time no direct appeal for opinions has been made—the commissioners believe they will receive particularly valuable assistance from the clergy. Country ministers and priests have not only written a surprisingly large proportion of the letters, but their suggestions show a broad and intelligent grasp of the situation.

The census bureau has agreed to tabulate the information which these letters yield. The next step of the commissioners will be a personal tour of the rural parts of the United States in order to get the opinions of the men and women there by direct contact and word of mouth.

The Major, Major, Miller and Graham in Scene from "The Man of the Hour."

MORSE TELLS HIS STORY.

Had No Experience In the Routine of Banking.

NOT A SALARIED OFFICER.

Had Secretary to Attend to Personal and Private Affairs and Keep Bank Account Straight--An "Accommodation Borrow" of $80,000--Bank Directors "Much Pleased" When They Got Profits From Ice Deal.

New York, Oct. 30.—Charles W. Morse, who, with Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, is on trial in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court on a charge of conspiracy and violation of the national banking laws, took the stand in his own defense yesterday.

All during the tedious days of the trial Morse has sat inside the railing, nervously awaiting the moment when it would become necessary for him to take the witness chair and undergo the ordeal of what he knew was in store for him. When his name was called he sprang from his chair as though greatly startled, looked inquiringly at his counsel and when the latter nodded his head affirmatively, the financier hurried to the witness stand and moved about restlessly in his seat while the lawyers were framing questions to ask him.

In a voice so low as to be inaudible to the jury, Morse gave his birthplace as Bath, Me., said he had graduated from Bowdoin college and that on coming to New York he engaged in the shipping and later in the ice business. After these preliminary interrogations the lawyers for the government volleyed questions at Morse so rapidly that his voice failed him when he endeavored to answer them.

Morse was kept on the stand until an adjournment had been taken. He related how he came to have an interest in the National Bank of North America, saying that he secured an interest in the consolidation in 1902. The banker said that he had had no experience in the routine of banking.

Morse said that he was not a salaried officer of the bank and knew nothing of the legal exactations covering national banking. He explained that after 1902 he had accepted an office in the directors' room in the new bank building. The financier then told of forming the acquaintance of Curtis and Wise.

"I had confidence in them and used my influence to have them made president and cashier of the bank," said Morse.

Morse testified that he knew nothing of the bank's method of bookkeeping and admitted that he saw the bank's loan sheets only a few times each year. "My secretary, Kate A. Wilson, and my former secretary, Arthur Braun, attended to my personal and private affairs," said the witness. "Miss Wilson kept my bank account straight."

BURGLARS KEPT PROMISE.

Morristown, N. J., Oct. 30.—The presentation of the members of the Perkins household towards the trio of masked burglars who invaded their home during the early morning hours of last Friday was somewhat tempered last night by the receipt of an express package containing a number of trinkets. At the time of the robbery the burglars had promised that any heirloom possessing a sentimental value which they inadvertently took would be returned.

DR. ORNE CRITICALLY ILL.

St. Louis, Oct. 30.—Rev. A. S. Orne, D. D., originator of the Juvenile court system, is ill here with malarial fever. His condition is critical. He first promulgated his ideas when pastor of a Congregational church in Westworth, N. H., and the establishment of the system in Chicago fourteen years ago is credited to him. Since then he has assisted in extending the plan to thirty-six states. He is 50 years old.

INSOLVENCY CHARGED.

New York, Oct. 30.—Application for a joint receivership for the Hudson River Electric Power company and seven other kindred corporations, having an aggregate capitalization of $15,000,000, has been made by lawyers representing the bondholders. Insolvency, mismanagement and misappropriation of funds is charged.

MAD STEER IN STREETS.

Atlanta, Oct. 30.—A mad steer ran amuck in the business section of Atlanta and before it was caught two persons were injured and others fled to places of safety, some being forced to climb telegraph poles. In one of his furious dashes at pedestrians, a horn of the steer was torn from his head.

ADMIRAL COUDEN RETIRED.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Rear Admiral Alfred R. Couden was placed upon the retired list of the navy today, his 67th birthday. He will probably continue as president of the special board of ordnance of the navy. He has held many important commands in American and foreign waters.

RICHES IN THE CONGO.

Brussels, Oct. 30.—H. D. Mohun, leader of the American expedition in the Congo, states that he has discovered rich deposits of gold, tin and copper in the Manyema district.

KILLED HER BABY AND SELF.

Young Woman Disengaged Because She Could Not Run House.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 30.—Louis Miholi, a granite cutter, aged 35, returned home from his work last night to find his wife, aged 19 years, and their year-old baby, Caesar, dead. In bed in their little tenement with their throats cut. The woman had killed the child and then committed suicide with the same weapon, her husband's razor.

Mrs. Miholi left a letter for her husband, in which she declared that she loved him, but that he was going to end her life because she did not know how to run a house. The Miholis had been married two years, but had boarded up to a week ago, when they went house-keeping, together with Miholi's brother, in a three-room tenement on the ground floor of a large block occupied by many Italian families.

Both the Miholis say that the young woman had not shown any signs of dependency and that Wednesday night she appeared to be in good spirits. She was asleep when they left the house at 4:30 yesterday morning. In a trunk in the room a bankbook, showing a deposit of $100, was found, and also a hand satchel belonging to the woman containing $23.50.

SECOND SQUADRON REACHES AMOY.

How China Interprets Friendly Visit of Americans.

Amoy, Oct. 30.—Eight battleships, comprising the second squadron of the American Atlantic fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Emory, arrived here this morning after an uneventful voyage from Yokohama. To the Chinese the visit of the Americans is of far-reaching importance and every preparation has been made to impress upon the representatives of the United States China's desire for even more cordial relations with the republic than have hitherto prevailed.

The sixteen ships of the fleet left Yokohama together on Sunday morning, but divided into two squadrons when two days out, the first, under command of Rear Admiral Sperry, heading for Olongapo, P. I., and the second bound for Amoy. The two squadrons will join forces again at Manila on Nov. 7.

Chinamen of exalted rank will take part in the festivities. China today is struggling to preserve the territorial integrity of Mongolia and Manchuria from the encroachments of Russia and Japan, and the presence of the American battleships at Amoy is welcome to the Peking government because of the interpretation that China has chosen to give to this friendly act—that the United States is inclined to support her in her contention with her neighbors—an interpretation that is not recognized officially but is of China's own making, the desire in this case being father to the thought.

Former Governor Murphy of New Jersey: "It is a question of majority only for Taft and Sherman in New Jersey."

General Street of New Hampshire: "Taft and Sherman will come out about 15,000 ahead in my state."

Congressman Hawley of Oregon: "Taft will carry every state west of the Mississippi, with the possible exceptions of Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas. Taft and Sherman will carry Nebraska by from 6,000 to 10,000."

Chairman Woodruff of the Republican state committee: "From the canvass made up the state, I predict that Taft's plurality will be over 125,000, and Hughes' will not fall below 75,000. I do not hesitate to say he will poll a larger vote in Greater New York than his most sanguine friends now think."

Republican Estimates of the Complexion of Congress.

FORECASTS BY LEADERS.

Taft Has More Than Fighting Chance In Kentucky and Tennessee--Prediction of 82,000 Plurality in Massachusetts--New York Is Claimed For Taft by Over 126,000 and Not Less Than 72,000 For Hughes.

New York, Oct. 30.—Representative Lounsherry of New Jersey, secretary of the national Republican congressional committee, has been in charge of the New York headquarters of the committee during the campaign, has given out his estimate of the complexion of the house of representatives in the next congress.

"From the several thousand letters," said Lounsherry, "and from personal interviews with politicians and other observers from all sections of the country, I am convinced that a conservative estimate of the political complexion of the next house is 227 Republicans and 161 Democrats. I am confident that election results will give an increase in the number of Republicans rather than a decrease. This campaign has been a strange one in many respects and unusual conditions have existed in different sections. While there will be some change, the net result will, in my judgment, be as stated."

Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee is still of the opinion that Nevada will be very close, but he is quite confident of Montana.

Information from leaders in Kentucky and Tennessee continues to reach headquarters and is to the effect that the Republican candidate has more than a fighting chance in those two states.

The following forecasts were made at Republican national headquarters:

Senator Lodge: "New England will give its entire electoral vote for Taft and Sherman. Massachusetts will give about the same plurality it gave to McKinley, $2,000. I have been up-state in New York and am confident that not only Judge Taft, but Governor Hughes will receive large majorities in this state."

Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor: "Judge Taft will carry the state of New York by a majority margin between that received by Roosevelt in 1904 and McKinley in 1900. Governor Hughes will receive a larger plurality than has been supposed."

Former Governor Murphy of New Jersey: "It is a question of majority only for Taft and Sherman in New Jersey."

General Street of New Hampshire: "Taft and Sherman will come out about 15,000 ahead in my state."

Congressman Hawley of Oregon: "Taft will carry every state west of the Mississippi, with the possible exceptions of Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas. Taft and Sherman will carry Nebraska by from 6,000 to 10,000."

Chairman Woodruff of the Republican state committee: "From the canvass made up the state, I predict that Taft's plurality will be over 125,000, and Hughes' will not fall below 75,000. I do not hesitate to say he will poll a larger vote in Greater New York than his most sanguine friends now think."

"STANDING ROOM ONLY."

Both Presidential Candidates Get Cordial Reception at Syracuse.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 30.—To a friendly sell, last night, the distinction of entertaining the two most prominent in public interest. To applauding thousands William H. Taft and William J. Bryan expounded respectively Republican and Democratic doctrine.

Mr. Taft made addresses at two meetings and Bryan at four. On each occasion the warning "standing room only" was displayed long before the hour of the meeting, and before the "big men" arrived standing room was at a premium and hundreds were turned away. Also, in each instance, the presidential candidates were received with flattering demonstrations and their speeches were frequently interrupted by spontaneous applause.

The Taft and Bryan specials arrived at the station at almost the same moment, shortly after 6 o'clock, and the expressions of welcome were pretty evenly divided. Both candidates were met by local leaders and entertained at dinner. Bryan left his car upon arrival and shook hands with many on the platform. Taft improved the opportunity to rest for a little while after his speech had come to a standstill.

Mr. Taft spoke at the Albion convention hall and Turn hall. Previously to the meetings there was a Republican parade.

Mr. Bryan was accompanied by Atton B. Parker and J. J. Danne. His first address was at the city hall, this being followed by speeches at the Wellington Opera house, Empire hall and before the Modern Woodmen of America.

In his principal remarks Bryan called attention to the fact that the campaign now was drawing to a close and that the Republicans were resorting to threats of a panic in case he should be elected. He expressed wonder that Taft had not been able to stave off the panic of 1907, when he was in Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet.

Mr. Bryan spoke yesterday at Cohoes, Utica, Rome, Oneida and Canastota, and at Rome, referring to the preparations being made for the Republican demonstration in New York city Saturday night, said that they would do better to spend their money for lodging the unfortunate people who sleep in the city's parks than to spend it in red fire, bands and costly reviewing stands.

Having delivered in this city his last speech of the campaign in the empire state, Bryan is now speeding westward, and today will make another visit of Ohio.

A feature in connection with Bryan's arrival here was his initiation, in his private car, into the Order of Mystique Krewe of Kanawha, a Syracuse boosters' club. Taft was later initiated into the same order.

Mr. Taft remained in town last night. His train yesterday visited Lyons, Canandaigua, Geneva, Seneca Falls and Auburn. There was no lack of auditors and enthusiastic demonstrators wherever the Oldean tarried. He hit at the roots of what he considers Democratic failings and was free in expressing his optimism as to what the result will be next Tuesday.

PLEDGE IS NOT BINDING.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 30.—Members of the North Dakota legislature will not be compelled to carry out their pledge to vote for the successful candidate at the primary senatorial election next Tuesday.

The supreme court yesterday decided as unconstitutional the pledge feature of the primary law so far as it relates to the popular election of United States senators. A writ of mandamus is denied and the election will proceed, but all members of the legislature are free to exercise their personal choice in the election of a senator to succeed H. S. Hanchett, who was defeated at the spring primaries. Taft will again. Many other candidates will be in the field.

MEAL TIME FORGOTTEN.

Albany, Oct. 30.—After a day of active campaigning in Warren county, James S. Sherman last night addressed a large audience in Albany. Proceeding to the meeting numerous marching clubs paraded through the principal streets. After discussing general campaign issues in his speech here, Sherman sharply attacked Mr. Bryan's attitude toward the foreign markets for American manufacturers.

DEBS IS HUSTLING.

BRIBER CONFESSER.

San Francisco, Oct. 30.—Standing in the shadow of the penitentiary with sentence about to be passed upon him, and having seen his young wife just led from the courtroom hysterically crying "no," E. A. S. Blake, a contrite, convicted of attempting to bribe John M. Kelly to qualify at the jury to try Abraham Ruef and vote for Ruef's acquittal, made a full confession in court. He told of an alleged offer of $10,000 and provision for his wife while he was in prison if he would not make a confession. The story told by Blake对照了 the indictment of the defendant. The place where the body was recovered was about two miles from the scene of the accident.

BODY WAS LUNG IN WATER.

Deer Park, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The body of Miss Emma Pay of Washington, who was drowned through the capsizing of the sloop Minnie Belle off here on Sept. 1, last, was recovered yesterday. It was identified by laundry marks on the clothing. This is the fourth body to be found of the seven victims of the accident. The place where the body was recovered was about two miles from the scene of the accident.

FAVORS TO STANDARD OIL.

New York, Oct. 30.—The admission that the Standard oil company benefited from a preferential freight rate lower than that quoted to any other shipper was drawn from a witness at the hearing in the government's suit to dissolve the company. George B. Ferguson, a clerk in the freight department of the Central Vermont railroad, gave the testimony referred to.

STUDENTS DISTIGURED.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 30.—Six students of the Polytechnic high school have been suspended and three others are in danger of sharing the same fate because they brandished the foreheads or two students of the Los Angeles high school with afflato of silver during the initiation ceremonies of the Kappa Delta fraternity, a forbidden secret society.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The Grand Trunk Railway company will on Nov. 12, formally take over the tunnel between Sarnia, Ont., and Port Huron, Mich., the electrification of which was recently completed.

Secretary of the Navy Metcalf is still confined to his bed with disordered liver and has canceled all his political and social engagements for the near future.

The Barcelona municipality has offered a prize of $1000 for the best poster design for advertising Barcelona as a winter resort, especially inviting the competition of American artists.

The Grand Trunk Railway company will on Nov. 12, formally take over the tunnel between Sarnia, Ont., and Port Huron, Mich., the electrification of which was recently completed.

INCENDIARISM SUSPECTED.

Belfast, Me., Oct. 30.—A fire which wiped out five summer cottages at the Northrop camp ground is believed to have been of incendiary origin, and the local authorities have asked for state aid in the investigation which has been started.

YANKEE STUCK ON ROCKS.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 30.—While the wreckers are working night and day on preliminary details, no attempt has been made as yet to lift cruiser Yankee from the rocks. The water in the ship will be allowed to remain until the wreckers are ready to lift her.

A MODERATE DRINKER.

President Eliot Never Experienced Any Ill Effects.

"MAKETH A GLAD HEART".

Declares However, That Use of Alcohol Does Not Enable One to Support Mental Labor--Has Changed His Mind About No-Licence Being an Infringement of Individual Rights --About the Maine Law.

Boston, Oct. 30.—After declaring that he had been a moderate user of alcoholic beverages in the form of wine and beer during most of his life, President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard university declared that his earlier ideas had since undergone a radical change, in a notable address last night before the Massachusetts No-Licence League, of which he is the honorary president.

"I have been all my life what is sometimes called a moderate drinker," declared Eliot. "That is to say, I have used beer and wine on occasions, not habitually, and I have never experienced any ill effects whatever in my own person from either beer or wine and I recognize the truth of the Bible saying about wine, that 'it maketh glad the heart of man.'

FRIDAY, OCT. 30, 1908.

A WORD FROM AUSTRALIA

The gazetteer tells us that the largest city in West Australia (a territory almost one-third as large as the United States) is Perth with 36,000 inhabitants. The whole state has less than 200,000 people, and Perth is the seat of government.

The United States fleet visited Albany, W. A., the principal port of the state and a city of 6,000 people, in September. Albany is nearly 250 miles from Perth, but the Perth Sunday Times made the fleet's visit the occasion for a big 24-page special edition.

The feature of the edition is the story of the immense undeveloped resources of West Australia, and it is written in interesting style. They are showing the enterprise to send copies of that paper broadcast in this country, and express the hope that it will secure settlers from this land which still has so much undeveloped soil.

In regard to the great occasion of that day in the Antipodes, the Perth Sunday Times said editorially:

"Of the sixteen battleships now at anchor in King George's Sound, little that is fresh and new can be said. During the last four weeks—ever since it steamed into Auckland Harbor—the fleet has absorbed the attention of the Australians to the exclusion of other topics. The orators of the Commonwealth have exhausted their stock of superlatives in appreciation of the Armada and its might. The newspapers have vied with one another in portraying and rhapsodizing over them. A million and a half people at the least—the greatest crowd ever known in the history of Australasia—have witnessed the celebrations and paid their tribute of enthusiasm to the navy representatives of the American republic.

The senator declares it was known at Washington long before the fleet started on its spectacular voyage around the world, that the sentiment of many of the people of Japan was likely to bring war. This sentiment was not shared by the ruler and his counsellors, but was so great they could make no headway against it.

Then Senator Dixon says, "Munitions decided to ask President Roosevelt to assist him in clearing the situation by sending an imposing fleet to strike terror to the hearts of those Japanese subjects who insisted on gilding in state procession into the most beautiful harbor in the world—has taken its place among the unforgettable things of Australian history, has established a claim to rank with the landing of Captain Cook, the granting of responsible government, and the inauguration of the Commonwealth."

As citizens of the Commonwealth, we in West Australia are associated with the great events which have been happening on the eastern side of the continent, and it needs not a newspaper's assurance to convince the officers and men of the fleet that we yield nothing to our eastern fellow citizens in loyalty to the American kinship and in admiration of the splendid fighting force which Uncle Sam has sent down from Hampton Roads to guard the dominion of the white man in the Pacific. The enthusiasm with which the arriving armada was greeted at Albany sufficiently testifies to that. And although the visit to the southern port is in the nature of a business call, and although the authorities are prevented, for a variety of reasons, from extending to the officers and men of the fleet such hospitalities as would be their portion were they in a position to receive them and to visit the other centers of population, the many celebrations should be sufficient to convince our guests that the feeling of the Westralians is one of unalloyed friendship and cordiality. It will not be forgotten, in this generation at least, that it was from a West Australian port that Admiral Sperry took his departure from Australia, and that the West Australian people had the honor of saying "au revoir" to the White Armada.

Apart from the spectacular standpoint the visit of the fleet promises to have a lasting significance for Australia. It is impossible to doubt that it has cemented the ties of friendship between the commonwealth and the republic. The unprecedented transports of enthusiasm which attended the fleet in Melbourne and Sydney were excited by no mere display of force, however majestic and magnificent. They were the tumultuous recognition of the relationship which united America and Australia: the reiteration and expression of a common policy, common interests, and a common stock. Something was needed to recall to our minds the pregnant fact that Australia, in the '80s, at least, was largely colonized from America, and that many of our racial and political ideals were imported from the same country.

If America could build this splendid fleet in ten years, we can build a fleet, too, in proportion to our population and our resources. If America is prepared to back her Asiatic exclusion policy with battleships, we must be prepared likewise when our day of trouble comes. This was the keynote of all the speeches delivered from the Australian side during the Melbourne and Sydney celebrations. The arrival of the fleet in Australian waters marked the end of the epoch of absolute dependence on the mother country for naval defense. And not only in the Commonwealth has the profound political significance of the visit been felt. From the London "Times," which is still the organ of the British government, issues a notable statement of the British attitude towards the White Australia policy—a statement which practically urges Great Britain to support the White Australia policy, on condition that the Australian states enter seriously upon the task of filling up their vacant spaces. This remarkable reversal of the traditional British policy cannot possibly be dissociated from the Pacific excursion of Admiral Sperry and his battleships. Apparently the mother country is no longer inclined to regard the Japanese alliance as essential, and is willing to conclude an understanding with the American government on the basis of mutual defense in the Pacific. If that be so, we shall have permanent reason to rejoice in the coming of the sixteen gigantic battleships, which are now rocking in the blue waters of King George's Sound.

KEEP AN EYE ON JAPAN

United States Senator Joseph M. Dixon declares that the Atlantic fleet was sent to Japan at the request of the emperor to overawe the latter's subjects.

The senator declares it was known at Washington long before the fleet started on its spectacular voyage around the world, that the sentiment of many of the people of Japan was likely to bring war. This sentiment was not shared by the ruler and his counsellors, but was so great they could make no headway against it.

Then Senator Dixon says, "Munitions decided to ask President Roosevelt to assist him in clearing the situation by sending an imposing fleet to strike terror to the hearts of those Japanese subjects who insisted on gilding in state procession into the most beautiful harbor in the world—has taken its place among the unforgettable things of Australian history, has established a claim to rank with the landing of Captain Cook, the granting of responsible government, and the inauguration of the Commonwealth."

of the Flame Trust—a comparatively small organization, but one that has boasted the priests to an extent that would put to shame some of the bigger trusts that are the subject of so much criticism. Mr. Carr is on the stump to get votes and he's proving himself an artist at playing to the galleries. His speech, taken together with his trust record and his political flippancy, will make a shining example of inconsistency.—Berlin Reporter.

Harbor Conditions Pleasing

It has taken two years to clean up the broken rock from the bottom of Portsmouth harbor, caused by the blasting of Henderson point, near the navy yard but according to a survey recently made by the government experts, the work is completed, and the largest ships now enter the New Hampshire navy yard in safety. The completion of this work ends one of the greatest engineering feats in the history of the country, if not the entire world. The contract for the removal of Henderson's point was awarded to the Massachusetts contracting company, in August, 1903, the contract price being $75,000. On July 22, 1906, the big blast occurred, when 38 1/2 tons of dynamite was used to hit the rock and the immense caisson which had been built around the point to facilitate the work. The company began dredging and removing the rock in January, 1906, and the job has been marked by accidents of all kinds which have greatly interfered with the progress of the work. On Wednesday of last week a diver from the yards and docks went along the river bed and found it practically a smooth and clear surface in every part where the point formerly stood. The report that has been forwarded to Washington, it is stated, gives thirty-five or more feet of low tide, and there is nothing now to interfere with the largest ships of the navy coming up to the navy yard.—Laconia Democrat.

MAYBE TO PORTSMOUTH

Likely to Move Internal Revenue Service Portland Office

The Portland Advertiser says:

On account of his election to the state legislature, Harry M. Bigelow of this city has resigned his position as stamp deputy to the collector of internal revenues. Mr. Bigelow was appointed to the office Jan. 1 of this year and tendered his resignation Oct. 1. It will go into effect Nov. 1, and the office will be taken by A. L. T. Cummings. Mr. Cummings held the position for years, ending last January, and when it was learned that Mr. Bigelow had resigned he was tendered the office.

However, it is thought he will hold the position only temporarily, for it has been the intention of the collector for some time to change the headquarters of the deputy's office from Portland to Portsmouth, or to some point near the center of Maine. It is likely that the change will be made in a few months.

Raphael DiProfo Bres at paper mill in a shanty, heard that Rose DiBerto had been shot on Sunday afternoon. Did not meet Raphael DiProfo after that day. Talked to him a couple of days afterwards and gave him water. Spoke to him about shooting Rose DiBerto, and he said that DiProfo said he shot her because he was drunk and did not know what he was doing. Told him to go and give himself up as the officers were after him. Did not see him until he saw Jim DiProfo shoot himself the next morning about five o'clock. He was under a barn. He was in his garden about thirty-five yards from the barn when he heard three shots. The police were near at the time and saw DiProfo when he came from under the barn bleeding from his wounds.

Michael Kelly, police officer, was called at the time of the shooting and made a search for him and found him at five o'clock on the morning of the 15th, and heard just as they got to the barn, two shots in rapid succession, followed by the third. Jim DiProfo coming out of the cellar with bullet wounds in his neck and took him to hospital.

Alfred John Weston, a special police officer, was with Officer Kelly when DiProfo shot himself. Did not know that DiProfo was in the barn until shots were heard. State closed with Mr. Weston's testimony and Mr. Kelley opened for defense.

Damiano DiProfo, no relation to Raphael DiProfo, knew him a long time in this country and in Italy. Raphael boarded with him about five months before the shooting. He knew that he purchased his provisions from Rose DiBerto. He was always pleasant while he was with him and always quiet and peaceful.

Otterino DiBerto, the husband of Rose DiBerto lives with wife No. 84 Market street. Day his wife was shot, he left the house in the afternoon to go to house where Raphael had been shot. He did not know how DiProfo headed on Cutty street, long he remained in the house. Saw while there Raphael DiProfo came him the next time in jail. Did not know where Raphael slept Sunday or Monday nights.

Cross-examined, brought out that a strange man followed her in and picked up her daughter.

The Fall Fishing Is Reported to be First Class

Academy Eleven's Saturday Game Is with Colby College

Exeter Oct. 30.

Peter Chase of North Berwick, Me., who is well known by employees at the Exeter station, and whose wife came from this village, was struck at Bradford by the swiftly moving freight, No. 1 on Thursday and instantly killed. Chase stepped from train No. 912, on which he was brakeman, onto an adjoining track directly in the path of No. 1 and was hit and hurled a distance of sixty feet.

The annual fall outing of W. Scott Noyes, Albion E. Hayes and G. C. Colburn had a pleasing termination Wednesday night in the form of a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Colburn in honor of Mr. Noyes, who is the only member of the party living out of town, his home being in Atkinson, Mass. Every year a dinner party or a reception is convened the out of town member of the outing party and this event promises to become an annual affair. A pleasant informal evening was passed, during which Mr. Noyes, Mr. Hayes and Mr. Colburn entertained the company with accounts of their successful hunting trip up the state. Others present were Dr. and Mrs. William H. Noyes, A. S. Willey and Harry Merrill. Mr. Noyes has returned to Atkinson, where he is prominent in town affairs and has large agricultural interests.

The bare and hours' chase which started from the gymnasium Thursday made a good run despite mud and slush.

The no-license rally tonight is attracting much attention as the subject is one in which nearly every Exeter citizen is interested.

A meeting of the G. L. Soule Society will be held in Merrill Hall tomorrow evening.

The academy choir held a rehearsal last night in the academy building.

John A. Butters, Jr., a senior in Phillips Exeter Academy, by the recent death of his father, will come into possession of money and property aggregating in value several millions. His father was a wealthy traction magnate of Piedmont, California. In addition to interests in several enterprises he held stock valued at $50,000 in the Northern Electric Company which operates a line between Sacramento and Chicago. The son knows nothing of the rental that his mother is cut off entirely and that his sisters are to receive only $5 apiece. He said that he supposed his mother would receive one-third and the remainder would be equally divided between his two sisters and himself. Young Butters, who is only sixteen, entered the academy last fall as an upper midget. He stands high in his studies and is a favorite of both teachers and students. He is a member of the Christian Fraternity and takes an active interest in all athletics and is a member of his class football squad.

The initiatory degree was worked on two candidates at the regular meeting of the Sugarmen Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Thursday evening. The ceremony was the first under the new ritual. The annual harvest supper of Gilman Grange will be held on Monday evening, Nov. 2. Several of the state officers have been invited. Many of the prominent members will respond to toasts.

Last night's practice was the fiercest and hardest which the crimson has been driven through this season. Coach Glaze went in at quarter for the second team and incidentally showed that he was by no means a has-been. The second, encouraged by Glaze's presence, went at the regular in hammer-and-tongs style. The scrumhame lasted ten minutes and both teams went at each other as if they were in an Andover game. About every other town some place lost its center or he was chased for repairs. Gradually, by way of variation, an aisle was created and a few feet loosened but, despite the injuries, the play was continued and hard and gave the regular the men some good defensive work. They did not, however, prevent the second from scoring even when Joe Gilligan's necessary charge to nose down on Tomorrows. They meet Colby College, generally conceded to be second best in Maine to the University of Maine.

A ROUSING RALLY

that he was the tallest man and secondly that he was the chairman of the pension committee. He then introduced Mr. White.

As stated before it is seldom that such an ovation is given a speaker and for several minutes Mr. White was unable to speak. He said that he proposed to discuss the issues of the day, that is national issues for while the republicans claimed that it was not a campaign of issues but of men, that he was forced to disagree with for he considered that there were at least two issues that were of vital importance. The tariff revision was the most important to the country he believed and while there had been great lack of prosperity he failed to see any signs of it in his own city, where mills and other shops were working on fair & two-thirds time. There was prosperity before Mark Hanna discovered the workingmen dinner call as a campaign sign and he thought that he was as well qualified to speak on that matter as anybody as he for years carried a dinner pail. He quoted Secretary Garfield as saying that the present pail was but a slight disturbance, a paper panic. He said that they could call it anything that they wanted too, the working people who were still hunting for work would agree to any name. He claimed that the entire cause of the people was the high tariff. That since it had been in force the prices of the necessities of life had increased while the wages of the workmen had not increased except in cases where the trade unions were strong enough to insist on the increase. That the increase in prices was followed by the workmen drawing on their reserve funds, and as they diminished, he wore the old suit for another year and put an extra patch on the shoes, with the result that the merchants were not turning over their goods, the manufacturers were not making the goods and business was at a standstill. The only solution of the trouble was the reduction of the tariff. The republicans saw this themselves, but two years ago the matter was forced to their knowledge, by such men as Governor Guild of Massachusetts and Governor Cammings of Iowa and the party had become divided on the matter into what was known as the revisionist and the stand patters. Uncle Joe Cannon was the leader of the stand patters, and he was having his troubles. Mr. Sulloway was a stand pater, he never did agree with his party. He has copies of Mr. Sulloway's speeches both for high tariff and for free trade, so it was hard to tell where he stood. He maintained that the republicans had the opportunity and the machine to do revised tariff laws, but failed to do it, but they promised to do so if elected.

He next went on to the injunction plank in both platforms and said that for the first time organized labor had taken sides in the national election, and he was sorry to state that they had been forced to. The Federation of Labor had gone to both parties and had asked relief from the injunction, that had been so abased by the judges. They had been well received at first by the republican party, but after the Manufacturers' Association had got the ear of the platform committee labor was thrown down by the republican party for capital. They then went to the Democratic party, who in turn threw out the capital as represented by the Manufacturer's Association and accepted the labor with the result that there was only one thing to do, and that was for labor to support the Democratic party.

He said that he appeared as a candidate for Congress and flattered himself that he was better qualified than Mr. Sulloway. His position on the tariff question, they knew and also his position on the labor question. He would if elected do everything in his power for this navy yard, but if Senator Hale exerted his influence to get a battleship to the navy yard, he would not claim the credit. He closed with a tribute to Mr. Carr, the democratic candidate for Governor, whom he claimed was at the head of the only good trust he knew. His workmen had been better paid, their hours shortened since it had become a trust and his produce was sold in foreign countries for a greater price than in this country, being one of the few trusts that could claim that.

Mr. Whitefield Tuck of Winchester was the next speaker and he devoted his time to an eulogy of Mr. Bryan, that grand man as he termed him, in every other sentence of his speech.

The meeting closed with the usual cheering.

SALISBURY FIRE

Lack of Foreseen on Part of Town Responsible

Chief of Police Beckman, working on the theory that the $75,000 fire at Salisbury beach was of incendiary origin, has already several important clues in hand, tending to bear out the suspicion of the police, says the Haverhill Gazette. It is announced that just before the fire two persons were seen in a carriage, driving away from the beach. The residents of the neighborhood and the owners of the destroyed property entertain no doubt as to the cause of the fire. They are sure it was the work of an incendiary.

As a result of the fire a bitter fight is on between the summer residents and the townpeople. The former claim that the citizens, in refusing to accept former State Treasurer E. P. Shaw's proposition to equip the town with a fire department a year ago, are indirectly responsible for the disastrous blaze.

They further allege that, although they pay from one-half to two-thirds of the entire taxes of the town, they receive practically no return whatever, and many say they will not rebuild until they receive definite assurance that they will be treated in a fair manner.

At hand at Salisbury is leased. There at the present time what is known as the Salisbury Beach Improvement Association, or Commissioners' association an organization of property owners and taxpayers formed for the purpose of forcing the town of Salisbury to build sidewalks and streets and inaugurate other improvements. Not even a street or walk is now maintained at the beach by the town. Owing to these conditions building has been retarded, and many of those who live within the burned area have been heard to say that, in event of a fire, they would never rebuild until the town had agreed to do something for them in the way of lighting, streets and fire protection.

Treasurer Philby Moulton of the cigarette corporation gave his views on the question: "If the townspersons had accepted Mr. Shaw's generous offer, the fire could have been fought, but it has never been the policy of the town to do anything for the beach and this is the result. The proposition to pay most of the expense of maintaining a fire department met with but little favor when it was made, the town of Salisbury not being willing to do anything for the beach residents. Although we pay from half to two-thirds of the total amount of taxes collected in return."

There is talk of a monster petition which shall force the town to take some action, not only in behalf of the stricken district, but also in behalf of the whole beach.

The town's side of the situation was thus presented by Charles Lord, chairman of the board of selectmen: "The summer cottagers have in many ways deliberately set about to antagonize us from the first, thus antagonizing much more than they knew the town could give. Some of them threatened during the summer to withdraw, using the old tax argument, but we have this year reduced the tax rate from $19 on a thousand to $16. As to their not receiving enough benefits, what do they expect? The expense of building roads on the sandy beach, which makes up the property of this corporation is too great for the town to undertake, though we are in hopes that Massachusetts may be induced to contribute the amount. Beach, N. H., state boulevard through this section at some future time. There are two sides to this matter of building out inducements to labor at the beach. The corporation owners themselves are reaping two-fold and in some cases triple profits on the leases at the date of their expiration. What have they to say about that?"

It is possible that the whole matter will be threshed out at a special town meeting to be held in the near future at Salisbury.

Salisbury beach has had several large fires, the most important ones being: Oct. 10, 1881, Atlantic House; Sept. 7, 1882, Seaside House; July 25, 1881, Lifebuoy's bath and other buildings; Dec. 2, 1892, Montgomery's bath and tea house; Oct. 12, 1893, pavilion and 29 other buildings, loss $15,000; Oct. 22, 1900, Ocean View house and 30 other buildings, loss $15,000; Sept. 16, 1901, Hope Chapel and other buildings; July 21, 1902, Quincey house, railroad station, 29 other buildings, loss $10,000; Sept. 17, 1903, Hartman house.

The much talked of Broadhurst play, "The Man of the Hour," under the direction of William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer is to be presented in this city tonight.

DAILY FASHION TALKS
BY MAY MANTON

A PRETTY LITTLE FROCK.

PRETTY little frocks that are made of cashmere, veiling, chiffon and similar materials and that can be worn over separate guimpes are favorites just now and are so pretty and becoming that their popularity is easy to comprehend. This one is worn with a sash of ribbon arranged in the new Directoire style, and is trimmed with bands of silk. But while it is a very simple little dress, it can be varied in a number of ways. The banding can be continued down over the front seam of the blouse and skirt, giving a semi-princess suggestion, and the neck can be cut on the square in place of the V-shaped outline. It can be made from dark colored cashmere or from light weight serge and become adapted to morning use or it can be made from a pretty light colored cashmere or chiffon broadcloth, such as pastel pink or blue and become very dressy in effect. The skirt is circular and the blouse is simply gathered at its lower edge, the two being joined by means of a belt. There is a novel arrangement of shoulder and under-arm seams, however, as the shoulder seams are left open for a portion of their length, falling apart over the sleeves of the guimpe, and the under-arm seams can either be closed or left partly open and finished with trimming as liked.

For the ten year size will be required 3 1/2 yards of material 24, 3 yards 32 or 2 1/2 yards 44 inches wide with 1/2 yard of silk for the bands.

A May Manton pattern, No. 6130, sizes 6 to 12 years, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (In haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage which insures more prompt delivery.)

"Item!" began the Boss. "I hardly expected a $10 raise would affect matters so soon. I knew you must have begun saving money when I saw you at the park the other night and noticed you had developed a passion for music instead of shooting the bunts and thumping the tops. But awfully back I thought you must have lost out, you smoked so many cigarettes and looked so sorry for yourself."

The Young Man smiled.

"That was part of the game," he explained.

"What game? Tell me all about it, my boy, and don't molt a thing. And here, take a cigar to keep your hands occupied. You've bitten off 14 fingers already. Now let it come. No, never mind my time. Proceed."

The Young Man accepted the cigar and proceeded.

"Well, sir—my mind has been made up all along—it was her or nobody for me. I'm no art commission, but she suits me for beauty. And as for disposition—why, honestly, it's worth while getting tired and blue and grumpy just to have her make you forget it."

"But I had strong competition. He was an out-of-town chap, but that only suited him glamour. When a fellow makes a tiresome journey just to spend a few hours with a girl she appreciates it—and she doesn't get farther enough with him to see his weak points. And when that fellow makes the trip often the town fellow would better think. I began thinking and concluding that the fellow I had been using as a trainer at first was now kicking dust back at me, and that such a cloud of romance hung around him that she couldn't see what a duffer he was. Then I kept on thinking until I hit a scheme."

"I knew her father was mighty strongly on my side. I had an idea my rivals were frequently brought into family discussions. So I called on the old gentleman at his office.

"'Father,' I said, 'something must be done.'

"'Right, my boy,' he replied, 'but what?'

"Then I told him my game. He got interested pretty soon and promised to help me.

"'I did.'

"You say it contained a sum of money?"
